A Message From the Department Chair

The annual university graduation and commencement exercises are traditional celebratory events uniting the university community, students and their families, and culminating years of diverse academic trajectories that converge commonly on this single milestone student achievement. It's truly a time to celebrate what we do as a faculty, students and as a university! We know our BME graduates go on to amazing achievements and success in biomedical and pharma industry, myriad graduate and professional schools and government positions. And they rack up numerous impressive awards, recognitions, and accolades along the way! As BME Chair, I am proud to detail the numerous recent achievements of our BME students and alumni, both recent and long-standing, in this issue of our BME newsletter. Additionally, you will learn about the University's recent alignment with the Department of Energy's Idaho National Labs, and our annual BME Research Symposium. Read on!
